COP26: “Not fear, but hope”

During the COP26 Climate Conference in Glasgow, Sir David Attenborough gave a speech as an advocate, informing delegates at COP26 of the simple fact, that they are powerful enough to save the planet, if they work together. In an impassioned speech to leaders, the naturalist and COP26 people's advocate gave rise to a video of the realistic world and voices of young people to warn that as a result to climate change, the stability we all depend on is breaking.

Greta Thunberg - the girl who shot to fame while still at school and managed to lead protests to raise awareness about global warming.

She has already been spotted joining fellow demonstrators in Glasgow on Monday morning singing “You can shove yer climate crisis up yer ae”

She has become a key figure in the fight against climate change and will be speaking at various climate protests over the course of the conference.

Leo Dicaprio

Leonardo Dicaprio has been an established climate activist for quite some time now.

The esteemed actor set up the Leonardo DiCaprio foundation in 1998, and has been donating money to conservation projects for over two decades!

He was spotted in Maryhill, Glasgow, recently and had been attending an event at The Engine Works

This singer and songwriter has officially been announced as an advocate for COP26 taking place in Glasgow, Scotland.

*Ellie
Goulding*

She will be raising awareness regarding climate change to audiences in the UK and Globally, promoting the importance of climate action to young people as well as attending the conference.

“I believe that COP26 MUST be the moment global leaders listen to the scientists and tackle the climate crisis for all our sakes. We have to keep 1.5 alive” - Goulding

Billie Eilish

“The decisions that they make about the climate crisis in the next decade are the most important decisions in our planet’s history.”

“This year, our leaders are deciding the global actions required on the environment and climate emergency in a critical decade for our planet,” Billie Eilish spoke.

“We must stand together and speak up to save our planet. Not just for us, but for our future generations. We need urgent, urgent action now, and to work together as one,” she said.
